Aliaxis announces key leadership appointments to their Executive Committee

Brussels – December 1st, 2025 – Aliaxis, a global leader in fluid and energy management systems, announced two appointments to their Executive Committee today.

Colleen Pritchett joins Aliaxis and is named Executive Vice-President North America, and Travis Lutes is promoted to Executive Vice-President Global Enterprise Transformation. These changes to the Executive Committee are effective January 1, 2026.

Alex Mestres is retiring as Executive Vice-President the Americas, after 40 years at Aliaxis, having shown exceptional leadership and playing a pivotal role in shaping the Americas region, in particular IPEX, Aliaxis' largest brand globally.

Mathieu Rousseau, Group Chief Operating Officer, has decided to leave Aliaxis and return home to Canada after 31 impactful years with the company, working across 3 continents, and as a key member of the Executive Committee.

Managing Director, Thierry Vanlancker comments:

"These appointments bring together a valuable combination of external expertise and experienced internal leadership, reinforcing our Executive Committee with renewed momentum as we enter our next strategic phase.

Colleen is a great fit to lead Aliaxis North America and she brings a proven ability to lead complex organizations through operational and commercial transformation. Travis' appointment is a testament to the depth of talent and experience we already have within Aliaxis as he steps into the global role.

I am confident this is the team to drive performance and reinforce alignment across the Group. I would like to thank Alex and Mathieu, for the instrumental role they played in shaping Aliaxis. I wish them both the very best!"

Colleen Pritchett, EVP North America, comments on joining Aliaxis:

"I am very pleased to join Aliaxis at an important moment for the North America region, we are facing challenging markets but have strong capabilities, dedicated teams, and a solid customer base to leverage. My first focus, will be to spend time in our operations, understand our challenges firsthand, and support our teams and customers. By simplifying and strengthening our processes, and aligning around clear Group priorities, I am looking forward to driving sustainable and profitable performance together."
